Laugh and the world wonders who the joke is on.

American people do not like to be fooled. They want to be shown.

Experience will teach a man a lot, provided he doesn't die from worry in the meantime.

If this country could get rid of her tariff squabbles, we would enjoy perpetual prosperity.

Congress is now earning the raise in salary which it gave itself two or three years ago.

The fellow who climbs the ladder of success sometimes kicks out the rungs behind him.

A man may be known by the company he keeps, but a Company is known by the way it advertises, and the stationery it sends out.

The reported hard words between Senator Aldridge and Congressman Payne were no doubt intended for the benefit of the galleries.

If we are to have free trade in hides, by all means give us free trade in boots and shoes as well. "Let the tail go with the hide."

If congress places hides on the free list, a great many farmers will engage in the tanning business at the November election one year from this fall.

The Burley Tobacco Society is not large enough to control the whole world and it should come down off of its high roost and agree to take a little advice from common mortals.

It is said that ex-President Roosevelt is coming back from Africa to run for Mayor of New York. His experience with lions on his hunting trip will not doubt qualify him for his fight with the "Tamany tiger."

It is unfortunate that the Burley Tobacco Society should see fit to refuse all overtures for an amicable agreement with the A. S. of E. We predict that within twelve months from now the Burley people will turn as one man to the American Society of Equity to save them.

We have never believed very much in women going on the stump and now that Miss Alice Boyd, who gained fame by advocating the Burley Tobacco pool a year ago, has undertaken to punish Congressman Campbell Cantrill, we are more than ever convinced that such a departure is a mistake.

We have long since learned that if we cannot have our own way in every respect and about every transaction it is best to refrain from raising a row, knowing full well that probably a whirl of the wheel of time will reverse conditions, maybe showing us also that it was better that we did not have our own way in the past.

It is almost certain that a taste of the new office building at Frankfort will cause many of the state officers to have an unquenchable desire for four more years. However, that is just what we accused the Democrats of four years ago and in order to keep consistent we must have a new deal. We have gone on record as opposed to rotation in office.

There is hardly a Southern Senator who does not want some Southern interest protected, though all Southern Senators do not show the frankness of Messrs. Daniel of Virginia and McEnery of Louisiana, both of whom declare they are for protection and do not care who knows it. Senator Bacon, of Georgia, is one of the latest claimants. The South raises cotton for the world, and has hardly perceptible competition anywhere. But Senator Bacon wants a duty of four cents a pound on Sea Island cotton, though he says that is not Protective, as he does not "propose to stand for a Protective duty." Wouldn't a little candor like that of Senator Tillman's be really more creditable? The pitchfork man from South Carolina pleads for a duty on tea, which, he says, is a "pulling infant" in his State. The highest possible duty would not be likely to have a very stimulating effect on the culture of tea in America, but Tillman wants all the chances that Protection can give. He is at least honest in his declarations.

Why They Became Republicans.

Wool growers are feeling prosperous this year because of the strong market and increased prices for the fleecy staple. A great deal of wool is imported even with a Tariff attached to supply the domestic needs of manufacturers. When the Democratic party gave the country the Wilson Tariff schedules the sheep and wool industry went to pieces and was a negligible quantity until the McKinley and Dingley schedules revived it. It may be recalled that hundreds of Democrats in the Southwest where the great sheep ranges are, became Republicans because of the reduced Tariff on wool, which stripped their business of profits and those men are still Republicans as business men, although of Democratic ancestry and teachings.—James-town Texas Gazette.

Southern Statesmanship.

Florida votes the Democratic ticket regularly and has always subscribed to the creed that "a Protective Tariff is a robbery of the many for the benefit of the few," and Florida still believes that those articles not produced in her own State should be upon the free list. But when it comes to permitting the pineapples which are raised in Cuba, Porto Rico or any other tropical country, to come into this country in competition with Florida pineapples—that means that an entirely different ox is being gored and explains completely the Tallafarro below.

Senator Tallafarro believes in free hides for the cattle raisers of the Western plains; free grain for the 'markets of the world,' free iron ore from Pennsylvania, and free shoes from Massachusetts; but he will stand for a higher Tariff on pineapples even than that proposed by the Aldrich finance committee, because Florida raises pineapples and he lives in Florida.

And the Hon. Free-Trade Tallafarro's contention for a high Tariff on pineapples was sustained by a vote of 34 to 30.

This apple story suggests the Ben Davis style of statesmanship which is very much in evidence just at this time.—Des Moines Capital.

OLATON.

July 28.—Rev. R. W. Oldham, Falls of Rough, pastor of Olaton Baptist church filled his regular appointment here Saturday and Sunday. The attendance was large on both days, and the sermons were excellent.

Mrs. Melvina Hall, returned from Beaver Dam, Saturday where she spent the past week at the bedside of her nephew Ernest Hall, son of W. W. Hall, who has been dangerously ill of typhoid fever for 3 weeks. The grainery erected by McDaniel S. White is a decided improvement for Olaton. The building is a large frame structure.

Roscoe and Dunk Hall, were the guests of their uncle, Mr. James Hall, of Payton Schoolhouse, Tuesday.

Mr. Wyatt Daniel was in Narrows, Saturday.

Mrs. Ira Faught has returned from Oklahoma, Mr. and Mrs. Faught left here last March and have traveled through many western states. Mr. Faught will arrive here in a few days.

Mr. Crit Hall of Jingo, spent Saturday and Sunday with his family at this place.

Mrs. Dr. C. W. Felix, whose illness we have mentioned through these columns from time to time has been very low the past few days and it is reported this morning that she is not expected to survive through the day. Mrs. Felix is known and liked by everyone throughout this section and her illness has cast a gloom over the entire neighborhood, and we are sad to think her recovery is doubted.

RODE GROWERS INTO CONGRESS

Says Miss Alice Lyod of J. Campell Cantrill.

Burley Society's Joan of Arc and Equity Organizer Sharp Have a Spirited Tilt.

Cynthiana, Ky., July 27.—The tobacco mass meeting here this afternoon was punctuated by a sensational colloquy between Miss Alice Lyod and M. F. Sharp, state organizer of the Society of Equity.

In the course of her address today Miss Lyod put Congressmen J. Campbell Cantrill, leader of the opposition to the pooling movement in the category of Mr. Roosevelt's undesirable citizens," repeated a sensational statement he had made in a meeting in Lexington to the effect that blood has flowed in Kentucky, and blood will flow again," and classified him with "demagogues."

Speaking further of the congress man, Miss Lyod said: Having ridden the Burley Tobacco society into congress over the Hon. W. P. Kimball, who by every right should have succeeded himself having received the votes of the Burley tobacco growers, who under protest, supported him because he thrust himself upon them as their candidate Mr. Cantrill now plays upon the weakness of the masses for further political preferment. He should remember Mr. Lincoln's classic utterance: You can fool some of the people all of the time and all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time.

Mr. Sharp had made a speech antagonistic to the Burley Society pledge for the 1909 crop and management of the society and the colloquy followed. Miss Lyod's rejoinder that men were being sent through the state trying to destroy her influence for the Burley Tobacco Society by means of falsehood and innuendo.

Mr. Sharp criticised salaries paid by the Burley Society. I venture to say that he is receiving a salary for the campaign he is making against this society and what I want to know is who pays him. He and others are doing the best work ever done for the American Tobacco company. Mr. Duke will sit back and laugh, and let Sharp and leaders of the opposition do the work.

The leadership which the American Society of Equity in Kentucky today is furnishing would make the most striking chapter in a new book on "The Reign of the Damagogue."

Of Interest to Farmers.

Expert discussion of the parasite which destroys clover and alfalfa is contained in a letter made public by M. C. Rankin, Commissioner of Agriculture, and which will be read with interest by farmers who grow either crop. The communication from Mr. Rankin is as follows:

Frankfort, Ky., July 21.—To the Editors of the City Papers and the County Papers in the State:

I wish to ask you to publish for the benefit of the farmers of Kentucky and also for the seed men, the following letter in answer to a request accompanied with sample of weed which was cut from a clover field of Dr. J. M. Jesse, at North Pleasureville, Henry county, Ky. The letter from Prof. H. Garman, State Entomologist, follows:

"Lexington, Ky., July 17.—Dr. J. M.

CARSON & CO

(INCORPORATED)

Hartford, Ky.

Hesse, North Pleasureville, Henry county, Ky., Dear Sir:—Some time ago I received from Frankfort a package containing the plant parasite, dodder, on clover, but through some oversight no communication with reference to it reached me, and I did not know exactly where it came from until I received this morning a communication from the Department of Agriculture. The pest is a true parasite, but its seeds germinate in the soil and grow much like other plants until it secures a hold on clover or alfalfa, when it loses connection with the soil and thereafter derives all its nourishment from the plant to which it is attached. The small flowers are not very different in structure from those of other plants and the seeds are produced in exactly the same way, but are extremely small. This species of dodder seems to be pretty closely restricted to the plants of the clover group, but there are others of the same genus which attack a variety of plants; one of them is the well-known love-vine often seen growing in large quantities over weeds and sometimes attaching itself to blackberries and other woody plants. It is known also to attack clover. The chief difficulty in destroying the parasite, once it becomes generally scattered in fields, is its likeness to the plants upon which it grows and the impossibility of applying a herbicide to it that would not kill the clover or alfalfa. Good may be done by cutting the infested clover so early that the dodder will not have developed its seeds. This and the precaution of avoiding land infested with dodder for clover and alfalfa, and planting instead such crops as corn, wheat, rye, potatoes and like, which are not attacked by dodder, and above all avoid planting seed with which dodder seeds are mixed, are the only suggestions I have to offer.

"I am satisfied, from the examination in this division of large numbers of clover and alfalfa seed samples that dodder has been widely distributed in the State with clover and alfalfa. There is no good reason why this should be so. The dodder seed is so much smaller and lighter than that of clover that it can be easily removed, either by careful screening or by the use of some blowing device. If our seed-inspection law were amended so as to prohibit the sale of forage seed containing the seeds of the pest, it would do the farmers more good than the provision against the adulteration of seeds. The adulterants employed for seeds are, as far as I know, all plants that have some value as forage, but they are much cheaper than the seed with which they are mixed, and while the farmers who buy such seeds are cheated they are not injured otherwise. In the case of the presence of large per centages of weed seeds, some of them destructive to the crops, as in the case of dodder, and others increasing the labor of the farmer, the buyer is not only cheated, but he suffers an injury which will require years to remedy. Yours very truly,

"H. GARMAN."
